

COAST GUARD AND SEA-PLANES ANSWER SHIP'S DISTRESS CALL

Navy Says Action is "In Accordance With Policy of Saving Lives"

A BRITISH FREIGHTER

No Word Received From The Rescue Vessels Dispatched Several Hours Ago

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1—Navy sea-planes and destroyers today were dispatched from their Atlantic Coast bases to co-operate with the Coast Guard in answering the distress call of the British freighter Coulmore.

The Navy said this action was taken "in accordance with the Navy Department's policy of protecting and saving lives at sea." The Department refused to state how many sea planes and destroyers had been sent to assist the Coast Guard cutters Bibb and Campbell, of the Atlantic Neutral Patrol, in trying to find the freighter.

The two big cutters were stationed well out in the Atlantic on coastal patrol duty when the destroyer's signals were picked up by the Mackay radio and other stations at 1.25 a. m. The distress signals were identified as those of the British steamer. While many hours have passed since the Campbell and the Bibb were sent to the Coulmore's approximate position—given to the Navy as latitude 49.20 north, longitude 62.31 west—the Department has received no further word from them.

Throughout the morning hours, the watch officers in the Commission's room at the Navy Department, and the Coast Guard stood by the radio receiver waiting for details.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1—(INS)—A small British freighter was reported early today to have been the victim of a submarine attack in the Atlantic about 500 miles due east of New York, in

"We Visit Alaska" Will Be Subject For Travel Club

"We Visit Alaska" will be the subject presented to members of The Travel Club on Friday afternoon at three by Mrs. Theodore B. Megarage and Miss Elma E. Haefner, with motion picture films also being shown by the former. Mrs. Frank Lehman will be in charge of the program, which will be followed by tea.

Contributions will be received at this meeting for the United Peace Chest. The committee in charge of the annual supper to be served by the club next Tuesday, will meet on Friday at 2.30 in the club home.

Man Held For Court On Charges of Woman

Attempting to elude two officers, a man was stopped on the P. R. R. embankment yesterday at the point of a gun. The man gives the name of Antonio Pasciullo, 67, 240 Lincoln avenue. He is charged with assault and battery by Lillian Wilson, colored, Spruce street. Pasciullo was fined $8.50 on a disorderly conduct charge and held in $800 bail for court on a charge of assault and battery. The hearing was held before Justice of Peace Edward Lynn, in the Municipal Building, last night.

Pasciullo, it is alleged, entered the Wilson home yesterday morning and made improper advances to Mrs. Wilson. She screamed, and her husband, Freeman, came down from the second floor. Freeman told Justice Lynn that he locked the door so as to keep the man in the house until he could summon the police. Then Wilson alleges that Pasciullo pulled a knife from his pocket and left the house. Wilson followed and threw a brick at him.

In the meantime the police had been called and Officer Sackville and Bucks County Detective Anthony Russo responded. They met Wilson and got a description of the man and started out to search for him. Sackville took the route along the P. R. R. embankment while Russo followed along the canal. Sackville caught up with Pasciullo, who started to make a get-away until the officer pulled his gun and ordered him to stop.

Pasciullo denied the allegations last night and said that it was Wilson who had the knife. He also denied making improper advances to Mrs. Wilson.

ALL SAINTS DAY

Class Members, Friends Mask For Party Here

The Sunday School class of Bristol Methodist Church taught by Mrs. William Mohr, had a Hallowe'en party Monday evening, in the church social room, for members and friends.

All were masked and a grand march was held to choose costumes for prizes. Mrs. Henry Reichert was selected as best dressed; Mrs. A. Vansant, comic; Mrs. Paul Simpson, most original. Games were enjoyed and refreshments served.

Those attending: the Misses Marion Walters, Alice Smith, Louise Smoyer, Elizabeth Smith, Dorothy Case, Elizabeth Wilkinson, Helen Appleton, Carrie Rapp; Mrs. Edwin Ballinger, Mrs. Harold Hunter, Mrs. William Milnor, Mrs. Samuel Rogers, Mrs. Harold Loud, Mrs. Paul Simpson, Mrs. Richard Winslow, Mrs. Melvin Wright, Mrs. A. Vanzant, Mrs. Charles Rathke, Mrs. Theodore Praul, Mrs. Robert Crowell, Mrs. Walter Appleton, Mrs. William Mohr, Mrs. William Doan, Mrs. Russell Booz, Bristol; Mrs. Henry Reichert, Holmesburg; Mrs. Warner Allen, Edgely; Mrs. Clifford Warrick, Philadelphia.

MASQUERADER FOUND DEAD ALONG ROAD

Abraham Roberts, 65, Was Dressed in Costume of A Tramp

POLICE INVESTIGATE

SELLERSVILLE, Nov. 1—State Police from the Quakertown Barracks today were searching for a hit-run motorist believed to have caused the death of Abraham Roberts, 65, who left home last night to celebrate Hallowe'en.

Roberts, dressed in a tramp costume, was found on the Allentown-Philadelphia road by George Walters, of Colmar. Wilmer Amey, 31, Richlandtown, Bucks County, was injured when his car skidded off the road at the spot when a state trooper signalled him to slow down. He suffered scalp lacerations, and was treated at Grandview Hospital. A woman and her daughter riding in the Amey car, were unhurt.

After the body of Roberts had been placed in the service car of undertaker John Moyer, Perkasie, the Moyer machine was damaged when struck by an alleged coal truck.

When the body of Roberts was found his shattered flashlight and a mask were found beside him.

Roberts, it is stated, had expressed to his wife a desire to pay Hallowe'en calls in costume as he did years ago as a boy.

Firemen Celebrate With Vaudeville Show

Bristol Consolidated firemen celebrated last night and enjoyed a fine program of entertainment following the quarterly business session. Officers were nominated and the election will be held at the January meeting.

There were four acts of vaudeville which were thoroughly enjoyed despite the fact that they were interrupted when a silent alarm was received for a chimney fire at 310 Hayes street.

When the alarm was received a crew of men quickly left the room and manned the apparatus and went to the scene of the blaze. The fire was only a trifling one and was soon extinguished.

Kindergarten Is Scene Of Jolly Hallowe'en Affair

The children of Miss Adelia Wright's kindergarten class, enjoyed a Hallowe'en party yesterday morning in their school room, Wood and Mulberry streets. The children attending were: Ann Louise Ardrey, Judy Focht, Dolores Barea, May Ann Boyd, Toha Lefkowitz, Francis Kirk, Arthur Pilla, James Maddox.

The children had a grand march, then all formed a circle and tried to guess each other. After unmasking, games were played. Miss Wright told them the story of Hallowe'en, and refreshments of ice cream and cake were served. The school-room and the breakfast room were decorated appropriately. The table in the breakfast room was decorated with lighted pumpkins, and favors were taffies and small cups of candy, wrapped in cellophane with a whistler in the center.

How Many Turkeys?

(By "The Stroller")
Are you having two Thanksgiving celebrations?

We know of a few families in Bristol who plan just that—a turkey for the new Thanksgiving date, November 23rd, and another when the young students of the family are home for the holidays from colleges in distant states which mark the later Thanksgiving date.

It's fine for the turkey growers, too, and we don't censor anyone who might find an excuse to eat two turkeys during the coming month.

Many Tap Rooms Close

Harrisburg, Nov. 1—The doors closed on nearly 200 liquor and beer establishments in the Philadelphia area today as the State Liquor Control Board denied permits to the proprietors to operate.

A Board spokesman announced that with the start of a new license period for the Philadelphia-Bucks-Delaware county district, action on the applications was held in abeyance by the Board "for various reasons."

The reasons include court appeals from revocation of licenses, citations pending before the Board, inability to provide bonds and failure to measure up to the Board's standard in such matters as being bonafide eating places.

French Claim Victory

Paris, Nov. 1—Three French victories in hand to hand fighting on the German front, while artillery pounded the center of the line, were claimed today in official French reports. German sallies revealed that efforts still are being made to find weak spots in the French line.

A war communique today said: "There was activity during the night."

Details of an unsuccessful German raid on French soil—the first effort of its kind in the war—were revealed in French quarters today.

Preceded by a sustained barrage, the attack was made on an unidentified village west of Saarlouis. Artillery shelling continued until German troops entered the hamlet outskirts when the French counter attacked and drove out the invaders after heavy hand-to-hand fighting.

The enemy forces consisted of two companies from the same battalion according to identification markings found on the prisoners and dead left on the field of battle.

The Germans did not attempt to regain their position after their retreat. French military authorities said.

TO OBSERVE ART WEEK BEGINNING TODAY

Paintings, Pottery and Carvings To Be Placed On Display

IN THE STORE WINDOWS

DOYLESTOWN, Nov. 1—National Art Week will be observed here again this year, beginning today; the third annual window-show in the town. The windows of the shops on Main street and State street will have paintings, pottery and carving which have been loaned by artists of the town and the neighborhood. On Main street the visiting artists will be showing in the following stores: Walter E. Baum, Delight Ansley and Helen Harding in Bean & Hobensacks; Edward Trego in Garner's Jewelry store; Frank Swartzlander and Ellen Swartzlander in Ely's Clothing Store; Helena Beacham in Schuyler and Bowers; Wm. F. Taylor in Kershner's drug store; George W. and Alice Sotter in Gardy's drug store; Judge Boyer in Rowe's Toggery Shop; M. Elizabeth Price and John R. Conover in Musselman's; James Eastwood in Frey's Shoe Shop; Nunemaker father and son, and Bye father and son in Clymer's.

On State street the Doylestown painters will have their pictures in these stores: Palace of Sweets, C. A. Sienkiewicz, Ruth C. Sigafos; Justin Ely's, Ethel Willard; Dunlop Tires, Esther Myers; Ruth Wiley, Marguerite Whitenack; Smith's Dairy, Donald Mills; Bitzer's, Anne Chestnut; Erdman's, Edith Malsbury Kurt's, P. Ginter; Zeek's Bakery, Ralph Hamilton. On West State street at the Supreme Cleaners Georgianna Show and J. Hearn Hunt.

The exhibition promises to be a particularly interesting one and well worth seeing. The Father and Son pictures at Clymer's store make an unusual attraction. Unlike gallery shows, this exhibit can be enjoyed while going to the movies, on a shopping trip or when going to call on a friend.

Here and There in Bucks County Towns

Borough Engineer Harry H. Lee, Jr., of Morrisville, announced today that Bank street is open for traffic following repaving.

Bank street is the third to be improved in the paving program at Morrisville. Barnsley and Stockham avenues were previously completed. Work is now under way on Richards street, from Green to Moreau streets, where a two-inch macadam penetration job will be done. Following Richards street on the program, which includes eight streets and 12 blocks, will be Hill avenue, in the Fourth Ward.

The fill across the creek bed, from North Delmorr avenue to the bank of Williamson Park, is about one-quarter completed. Lee said. Excess from the street jobs is being used as fill. The calling off of the Trenton avenue improvement until next Spring has slowed progress on completion of the fill, as excess from that job was to be used.

Williamson Park's grandstand is being painted and general clean-up work being done. It is expected that Common Council will not start any big improvements to the park until next Spring.

Pearl S. Buck, who owns a country home near Dublin and who last year received the Nobel Prize, was the guest speaker at the George School Parents in Council meeting held at the school near Newtown.

The well known novelist addressed the student body in the auditorium and the address was relayed to the gymnasium so that the guests could hear it.

A meeting of the executive committee was held early in the afternoon. Officers are the president, Clement Lewis, Riverton, N. J.; secretary, Mrs. Norman Swayne, George School; and treasurer, Mrs. Albert Mammel, of Newtown. During the afternoon the guests and students witnessed a soccer game between George School and a school in Moorestown, N. J.

After the supper served in the gymnasium, George A. Walton, Joseph Shane and Wilhelm Hubben, all of George School, spoke on the contribution George School seeks to make in the field of secondary education.

Saturday, November 4, a reunion of the old students will be held at the school. Games and an interesting program of entertainment have been arranged for that occasion.

The highest herd average recorded during the month of September among all herds in the United States enrolled in the Ayrshire herd test was an average of 1622 pounds, 4.15% milk, 42.40 pounds butterfat, completed by the seven purebreds owned in the Deephaven Farm of Tyson Nimick of New Hope.

All cows in the herd were milked but twice daily throughout the month. The leading individual producer in the herd during this period was Rushing Spring Dolly, a three-year-old heifer sired by Penshurst Vidor, that made 1323 pounds milk, 56.89 pounds butterfat.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

"Distributed by McNaught Syndicate, Inc."

An Abandoned Idea

Washington, Oct. 31.
FOR more than a month now the war in Europe and the embargo fight in Congress have so absorbed attention that the home problems, which certainly were fairly grave, have not only been wiped out of the public mind but public officials, temporarily at least, also seem to have lost interest in them.

TO a large extent men have stopped thinking, speaking and writing about them. Perhaps that is as it should be while a vital part of our foreign policy is being determined. But it seems certain that this domestic disregard can not be continued beyond that point except with serious injury to the national interests. Thoughtful men think it already has lasted too long. The fact is that in this period of nonpartisan inattention, domestic problems, though out of sight, not only have become more acute but there is danger of breeding a public inertia which will make dealing with them very much more difficult.

FOR EXAMPLE, there is the question of Federal finance. When Congress adjourned last August, there was among those who grasped the facts keen concern over the obvious inability of the Administration to control the Government's money affairs. The solemn front of the Treasury officials does not conceal the fact that they are clearly out of hand. The fiscal year ending in July had seen another shockingly huge deficit added to a series of nine consecutive

WORKERS PREPARE FOR RED CROSS ROLL CALL

Bristol Chapter Members Will Have a Meeting on Monday Evening Next

DRIVE, NOV. 11 TO 30

The Red Cross roll call begins on Armistice Day in Bristol, where it touches the lives of residents beneficially and indispensably. Without regard to race, creed or color it wages continual war against the effects of disaster, sickness, accidental injury, and death.

The Red Cross is a faithful friend to many citizens of the town for its efficient help in times of trouble. With a greater demand for helping the suffering than has been experienced for years, a plea is made that all contribute willingly, making the dollar say effectively, "I serve!"

The local chapter will meet in the Travel Club Home, Monday, at eight p. m. All workers are requested to be present. A social period will follow the meeting. The roll call will be from November 11th to 30th.

The names of the workers in the various wards follow:

TESTIFY TO DAMAGE DONE BY FLOOD WATERS OF RIVER

Hearing Held by U. S. Gov't Departments in Community House, Morrisville

ADVOCATE DREDGING

Trenton, Morrisville, Yardley and Penns Manor Represented at Hearing

MORRISVILLE, Nov. 1—Representatives of municipalities, large real estate owners, owners of department stores, and residents of this vicinity gave testimony yesterday concerning flood conditions of the Delaware river at a public hearing held here in the community house. The evidence given, both orally and written, dealt with conditions in this particular area.

The hearing was held as the result of the efforts of Congressman Charles R. Gerlach, who was instrumental in having provision made in the "Flood-Control Act" whereby a study could be made of the flood waters of the Delaware river.

Representatives of the War Department, U. S. Engineers Office; and of the Department of Agriculture, Allegheny Forest Experiment Station, conducted the inquisition. The personnel of these two departments who were in attendance included the following: Major C. W. Burlin, district engineer; V. F. Spring, M. L. Bostwick, engineers; H. F. Bamhargher, M. Weinroth, E. A. Wilder, assistant engineers, and R. L. Ord, inspector, U. S. Army Engineers; and Earl J. Rogers and David W. Lippert, Department of Agriculture.

Major Burlin presided at the hearing and the proceedings were recorded so that all of the data can be studied and correlated with other data bearing upon this subject.

In opening the proceedings, Major Burlin read the official notice and told that it was with the idea of gathering all available information upon the subject that the hearing was being held. The data assembled will be submitted in a report to the district engineer, then to the divisional engineer, and finally to the Board of Engineers at Washington, with the reports of each office accompanying it.

The first witness was Hon. Thomas B. Stockham, member of the Pennsylvania House of Representatives. Mr. Stockham recited conditions which existed at the time of ice freshets at Morrisville and suggested the dredging of the river to a sufficient depth in that area extending from the P. R. R. bridge to the end of Biles Island and from bulkhead line to bulkhead line. He said that in his opinion the ice jams were due to the ice piling up on the shoals or bars in the area mentioned. He produced a map showing the area of the river referred to and then mentioned the ice jams of 1934, when the ice piled up to a height of 16 or 18 feet. In 1936 he stated there was another jam and these jams caused freshets during which portions of Morrisville and also portions of the business section of Trenton were flooded.

Mr. Stockham said that in the flood of 1936, 20 or 30 houses were undermined, one washed down the stream and others dropped into holes. The Red Cross came into the area and along with the residents of this borough aided in the rehabilitation of those suffering from the flood.

He said that in his opinion the danger from washing currents had been removed to a great extent by the deepening of the river further down, but that the danger of back water still existed.

Joseph E. English, Engineer of the City of Trenton, N. J., spoke of the damage done by floods in the low portion of Trenton's business section. He blamed the flood conditions to a great extent on the ice piling up on the shoals in the river. He stated that his office would submit a written statement at a later date for the information of the authorities.

Major Burlin asked "if the removal of the piers of a proposed railroad bridge a few years ago had aided any?" Mr. English said that he thought that it had and that no serious ice jams had taken place since 1936.

Mr. English thought the shoals should be dredged out and he recited the damage done to the Trenton pumping station. State property in the rear of the State House and in the business area by the floods from time to time.

Samuel Swern, Trenton Department Store owner, said that the store property and merchandise of his company had been damaged in 1934, and three times in 1936. On January 4, 1936, the water was four feet above the selling floor and a rowboat was used to remove merchandise from the shelves. "We have lost thousands of dollars' worth of merchandise as have also the Murry Rubber Co., Crescent Wire Co., and the Joseph Stokes Rubber Co." One time he and a crew of 25 men worked all night in removing merchandise and the foundations of their building had had to be reinforced. He gave the value of the merchandise damaged as $3,000.

DIET AND DIETING

A popular misconception of the meaning of the word diet is corrected by Dr. A. F. R. Andresen, clinical professor of medicine at Long Island College of Medicine, Brooklyn, who in an address at the institute of nutrition and diet sponsored by the Medical Society of the State of New York said:

"Everyone who eats at all is on a diet. It may be a good diet or a bad diet, but still it is a diet. A diet means a system of eating."

The statement of Dr. Andresen may cause a person who believes that a diet is nothing more or less than a health measure, to look up the word in the dictionary, just to see if the doctor might be wrong. But a reference to Webster shows that the doctor is right. Whatever may be your eating habit, whether good or bad for health, the fact remains that it is a diet so far as the dictionary is concerned.

But the dictionary merely defines, does not safeguard health. After giving the first definition, it goes on to list the newer meanings of the word, among them, of course, the familiar one which has to do with food prescriptions and allowances, measures designed to correct eating or diet habits which are bad for the health. As the doctor points out, there is the new and specific interpretation of the word which really should read "balanced diet," and that is what he is talking about when he says:

"The human body is a very delicate piece of machinery and its parts consist of different kinds of tissues, each requiring certain food elements to replace them as they wear out. And to keep the various bodily processes working properly certain other factors are necessary. A scientific diet takes all of these factors into consideration, and when it does, such a diet is called balanced."

Some local judges in Chicago are flouting justice, an angered presiding jurist cries. A court in contempt of court is not a pretty sight.

According to a late typographical error in the West, Joe Stalin is "enroaching" on his Baltic neighbors, or is this an error?

One hundred and twenty-nine dollars was realized from the supper given by the Altar Guild of All Saints' Episcopal Church, held in the Community house.

Karl King has arranged for a dinner party to be held next Saturday night in the Carteret Club, Trenton.

Miss Anita Cregar, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Cregar, of Fallsington, is included on the list of students on the dean's honor roll at the West Chester State Teachers College. In order to achieve this distinction, a student must have an average of "B" or better. Miss Cregar is active in the Girls Glee Club, and also in Quad Angles, the college paper.

Mrs. Stephen Woolston attended the marriage of her granddaughter, Ethel, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Horace S. Woolston, Collingswood, N. J., and Edward Moffett, also of Collingswood, in the Collingswood Presbyterian Manse.

Miss Flora Dooling, Trenton, N. J., has been visiting her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Wolpert.

"LOVE'S INTERLUDE" by MAY-CHRISTIE

SYNOPSIS

Moira Carewe and Tarleton Griggs are in love, but wealthy, self-made Joseph Griggs has social aspirations for his son and does not approve of a match with a mere ethnologist's daughter. So, happy-go-lucky Tarley, realizing the comforts his father's wealth affords him, engages to Lady Carreen Kilmory. At a hunt meet, the day before their scheduled marriage, Lady Carreen comes upon Tarley and Moira in a tender embrace. Disillusioned, she gallops off, straight towards "Devil's Leap," a treacherous jump. She takes it, but falls and is killed. Tarley and Moira are conscience stricken. He goes abroad, and Moira doesn't see him until months later when she accompanies a wealthy family to Paris as tutor to their two children. There, Tarley and she plan to marry, but again Griggs, Senior, steps in and frustrates them. He takes his son to Baden-Baden where the socially prominent Sadie Vandergelt, Griggs' choice for a daughter-in-law, is also vacationing. Although Tarley wrote he would run over to Paris to see Moira, she waited in vain. They all return home in the fall. Then comes the stock market crash. Mr. Griggs is ruined and the shock kills him.

CHAPTER VII

Tarley went off to South America, after the wind-up of his family affairs. Torney Park and everything in it was taken over by the creditors.

"I have to start from zero! But I'll keep in touch with you, darling! Some day we'll be together always," he assured her.

She went back to the University, contriving to do so by retaining the job with her Boston friends. She was determined to make something of her own life now.

A year passed. Then another. She was twenty-two now. Tarley's letters were very few and far between.

Her father seemed to be getting poorer and poorer. The old house shabbier. Hadn't she had enough learning, she told herself. Be practical. Get to work.

She had a tiny bit of capital left from her mother's estate. Enough to take a room in New York, and attend the School of Applied Design for Women.

The big shops, more and more, these days, were paying excellent salaries to their clothes-designers. She took a course in color and line. That finished, her search for a job started, for now she was fully equipped.

Weeks passed. Fashion designers, it seemed, were as plentiful as blackberries in the fall! Gradually this was borne in on Moira.

Meantime, while she waited, she tried to eke out her capital by tutoring, by any odd jobs at all. They were hard to find. Far too many young women were applying for posts in teaching. There weren't enough jobs to go round.

Finally, she went to a School for Beauty, enrolling in a night-course. With the women of the land increasingly beauty-conscious, surely there would always be employment for a good operator? And, anyway, it was something to fall back on.

These were hard and busy days. No time for social life, for recreation. Studying, practicing her designs, occasionally tutoring, trying to connect with some firm during the day, and at nights, learning to beautify other women.

She showed real aptitude at that. She had the right touch.

at work since half-past nine. She disregarded the aching and burning in her slender feet, that was probably the most annoying feature in the life of a beauty-operator—partly because her job of beautifying the passé widow was fascinating, but mainly because Tarleton Griggs would be awaiting her a half-hour hence at the shop's closing.

Dear, handsome Tarley, who waited for her very often now that he himself had got a job in New York—even if it was a precarious one!

In spite of her own high intelligence and excellent education, what if she had failed to land the sort of job she wanted? There were thousands like her...

Besides, thinking of Tarley and dom for life and love a decade too late to have her fling, now stared delightedly at herself in the mirror of Moira's cubicle.

"Why, I declare I hardly know myself! It's like a new lease on life!" as she twisted and turned. "Why, Miss Moira, you're marvelous! You're a regular wizard!"

It was really a triumph of make-up. Moira felt elated, as though she had assisted in the rebirth of a soul!

Joe Deverney, whose plump, jealous wife Cora owned the beauty-shop, though he himself was given the courtesy title of boss, came by. An elegant from the crown of his thinning hair to his brightly polished shoes, he paused at the open the vast change in his fortunes, she knew that she herself was lucky, comparatively speaking.

Moira's search for a job started, for now she was fully equipped.

For ironing out tired faces was an art, Moira was wont to declare whimsically! Under the coaxing of her finger-tips that were firmly yet softly padded, like a cat's, hadn't the years miraculously dropped from the mouse-like widow who had come to Moira for rejuvenation?

"If I could only look like you!" Five weeks ago, seated in Moira's cubicle and lifting her gaze from the discouraging reflection of her own face and throat to the glowingly pretty countenance of the young operator, Mrs. Rules was giving tongue to what lies in almost every woman's heart when the bogey of an unloved, lonely middle age is threatening.

Moira had thought—but did not say—"If only I had your money!" Fear of poverty—the weeks of being jobless in this town—had given her a new angle on living. Youth and beauty threw a glamor on this carking fear, but cover it as one might, it was terrifying knowledge that thousands of other frightened girls were clamoring for a job—that some small mistake, the offending of a customer, the boss's wife, might fling her back into the old, desolate despair. Wearing out shoe-leather for jobs when there weren't any. Snubs, rebuffs and disappointments.

But none of this showed on her pretty face as she had cheerily if unoriginally replied that a woman is only as old as she looks, and that she'd work wonders with this customer if she'd come in regularly for treatments.

With touching belief in what she desperately wanted to believe, Mrs. Rules had done this.

Now if faith removes mountains, Moira's nimble fingers (coupled with her knowledge of cosmetics) had surely been faith's hand-maidens. The woman whose late husband's legacy had given her free-curtain of the booth, and smirked at the transformed customer.

She repeated her praise. He placed a soft white hand on Moira's shoulder in a manner that seemed fatherly, but which she suspected might be the preliminary to further familiarity. Moira hated that touch.

He said oilyly: "She has a fine subject to work on, and she's a grand little operator."

"All our girls are capable workers," snapped a voice from the rear. Cora Deverney could tread lightly for a large woman, and she had a habit of following her husband and supplementing his remarks, tartly and unexpectedly, that was disconcerting to both operator and customer.

As her eyes met the hostile gleam in Cora's in the glass, Moira wondered, with a sinking heart, if she would be made to work late tonight by the jealous wife?

Tarley! She couldn't bear a cancellation of their evening plans. At the end of his day that was dotted with minor defeats and humiliations, Tarley needed her sympathy, her tact, her praise, for the bolstering of his ego wounded in Wall Street.

Evelyn Groves' gay laugh came over the partition. Good-hearted, frivolous Evelyn who was her fellow-worker in the shop, and the one operator of whom Cora had some reason to be jealous.

"Stringing the boss along" was the airy phrase with which Evelyn dismissed a stolen kiss, a sub rosa little dinner. If a man was a bit of a fool at forty-five, why shouldn't a bright girl profit thereby? One was only young once, and where was the harm in a small flirtation if one could wangle a pair of silk stockings, a new hat, see a good show, and at the same time square the score with catty old Cora?

1. The names of the above sixteen Republican candidates appeared on the Republican Primary Ballot at the Primary Election held on September 12th, and approximately 9500 Republican voters went to the Primary Election and nominated them. Some had opposition, others did not.

2. Every one of the Republican candidates is well and favorably known in the community in which he or she lives for their honesty, ability and possessing the qualifications for the offices they seek.

3. For some years the public affairs and business of Bucks County have been under Republican administration and the reason the Republican Party has been kept in power in Bucks County, is that it has given the County an honest, capable and efficient administration of county affairs.

4. Bucks County still maintains as low a tax rate as any County in its class in Pennsylvania, in spite of increased expenses, and compared with neighboring Counties, it is low in its per capita debt.

The per capita debt of Pennsylvania as a whole is $67.70 for each person. In Philadelphia County it is $61.13 for each person; in Montgomery County it is $48.77; in Lehigh County it is $40.12; IN BUCKS COUNTY IT IS $30.46.

5. Contrary to many other counties in Pennsylvania, the Republican county officials take charge of and work with their deputies and clerks, and perform their share of the duties of the office, six days a week. You will find no "drones" in the Court House or at the Administration Building.

6. It is a matter of history that when the Democratic Party secures control of National or State government, its officials are very free in spending the public money.

When the Democratic Party secured control of the National Government in 1932, the public debt in round figures was $19,000,000,000. Within six years the Democratic Party has increased the public debt to approximately $40,000,000,000!

When the Earle Administration took office in January, 1935, there were 8825 employees in the various State Departments. At the end of the Earle Administration there were 12,436 employees, an increase of 3611.

Expenditures during the second biennium of the Democratic regime (1937-39) were 181 millions more than the biennium 1933-35 which directly preceded the Earle Administration.

In other words, State expenditures during 1937-39 were 78% higher than the appropriations for 1933-35, under Republican control.

The Earle Administration not only spent every dollar received in revenue, but increased the State debt by 56% and, in addition, spent 50 million dollars more than it took in.

It went even further than that. It not only increased the State debt by 56% through the issuance of State Authority bonds, and put the State in the hole for 50 millions of dollars of excess expenditures, but it entered into commitments which would have required 160 millions of entirely new and additional taxes to have carried out.

Governor James and the Republican Legislature:

1. Cut the ordinary operating costs of State Government so as to save 7 millions of dollars between January 1939 and May 1939.

2. Saves 17½ millions of dollars in the appropriation for the operating costs of the State Government in the biennium 1939-1941.

3. Wiped out commitments under which the Democrats had arranged to spend $160,000,000 more which would have required that much new and additional taxation.

We saw the Earle Administration attempt to re-write the Constitution to suit its own purposes. Two years later the effort was renewed through a series of Amendments which would have authorized uncontrolled borrowing, plus taxation and spending practically without limit. Defeated in both efforts, they turned to unconstitutional legislation ground out by a compliant Democratic Legislature.

Nearly a score of these enactments have been set aside by the Supreme Court. Defendant mal-administration of public affairs has brought criminal indictments against former high-ranking Democratic officials, one of whom already has been convicted, together with two co-conspirators, with nine others still to be tried.

The Commonwealth was fortunate to have such a General Assembly as the one of 1939 and a Governor such as Arthur H. James, both standing for fair play, and for reason, economy and progress under a truly constitutional government.

Their work merits approval, and November 7th next affords the opportunity to do so.

7. The Republican candidates believe in efficiency and economy in Government, instead of waste and extravagance.

The Great Game of Politics

ones. It saw the national debt approach the forty-one billion mark. It saw an expenditure for twelve months of $9,300,000,000, and it saw the Federal machine expanded until a million jobholders are lodged on the pay roll.

ALARMED at the steady increase in governmental expenditures, an economy bloc formed in the Senate last session and some cuts in Administration appropriations were made. It, however, became clear that no real reduction could be made without White House leadership. So far from obtaining leadership in that direction, the weight of the President was thrown heavily in the exact opposite. He not only made no recommendation for economy but in his January message took the view that any effort to economize would be injurious. He proposed another vast spending-lending program, which still further would have increased the debt, brought us closer to inflation, and added to the strain on the Federal financial structure.

CONGRESS refused to enact this measure and cut a good slice off relief appropriations. But it nullified these economies by voting many more millions to the already heavily subsidized farmers and wound up with no net saving at all. However, it was significant that for the first time it was the Congress which curbed the spending tendency of the President, not the President, who tried to halt Congressional extravagance. Since last August the debt has increased daily, no effort at economy has been made and the job of recovering our financial equilibrium has become very much harder. These and other dangers of the swift move in the spending direction were recently pointed out by Mr. Lewis Douglas, who, as Budget Director in the first years of the Roosevelt regime, added in the great 1933 achievement of cutting nearly half a billion dollars off the billion-dollar pension load, only to see the bulk of the cut restored within two years.

As we approach the next session our financial situation is so immeasurably worse in every respect—debt, deficit and governmental costs—than in 1933 when Mr. Roosevelt proclaimed it perilous and insisted upon drastic reductions, that there simply is no comparison. If it was appalling then, what is to be said about it now? Seven years of New Deal pouring out of funds and propaganda have dulled the public's sense of reality. The really alarming thing is that the war, along with the passage of time and the improvement in business, has ended all effort to slow down and true up. Those in public life who want to be discouraged at their inability to make progress.

THE topic of economy has become thresome. No one in the Administration any longer utters the word. The radical aides of the President are merely waiting to renew their spending-lending program. Conservatives like the Under Secretary of the Treasury, Mr. John Hanes, naively adopt the view that through prosperity the budget will ultimately balance itself. When you accept, as Mr. Hanes does, the fact that Federal taxes will not be increased there is nothing left to fall back upon except the unsound theory that some day we will have a national income of $80,000,000,000 and the budget will then automatically be in balance. In other words, even the Conservatives in the Administration no longer look the facts in the face. All idea of economy has been abandoned.

ON THE SCREENS

GRAND THEATRE

"Nancy Drew and the Hidden Staircase," the fourth in the Warner Bros. series of pictures based on the widely read Carolyn Keene stories, comes to the Grand Theatre today with Bonita Granville again in the role of the indomitable girl detective.

The other leading parts are filled by the same players whom the wide public which follows this series has come to expect to see in their familiar roles. These include Frankie Thomas as Nancy's boy friend and companion in adventure, John Littel as her father, and Frank Orth as Captain Tweedy.

You save many steps and minutes whenever you go to the stores by telephone.

THE BELL TELEPHONE COMPANY OF PENNSYLVANIA

RITZ THEATRE

When you see Roy Rogers playing the leading role in his current All-Star singing western, never doubt that the personable young cowboy star is fully capable of portraying these characters on the screen. Not only is the young fellow an accomplished horseman, but he is also one of the finest athletes the movie city boasts of constantly.

Roy, whose latest picture for Republic, "In Old Caliente," comes today to the Ritz Theatre, is a near six-footed, and packs an even 160 pounds of bone and brawn.

BRISTOL THEATRE

Brunette-tressed June Duprez, Alexander Korda's 20-year-old discovery, is co-starred with Ralph Richardson and John Clements in the producer's great Technicolor adventure drama of the Sudan, "Four Feathers," which is scheduled for its premiere engagement at the Bristol Theatre today.

The story of "Four Feathers" treats of a young man who because of fear and cowardice deserts his regiment on the night of its departure for Egypt to join Kitchener's Army and later redeems himself by completing an extremely dangerous mission.

COFFEY BOWLERS MAKE HIGH SCORE ON ALLEYS

The Coffey bowlers brought their winning column up to 31 and 1 loss by taking all 4 games from Sinclair. The Gas Measurers have the highest three games bowled on the bowling alleys this year. The games bowled were 954, 950, 918. The three games which they bowled averaged to 282. Every man on Coffey's hit over 500. Antonelli led the Coffey attack for three games with an average of 610. Andy Moore bowled a high single of 232. Joe "Ace" Antonelli also had a high single of 229. The players and scores for Coffey's were as follows: Coach Fraser, 526; Andy Moore, 590; Bahah Kondyra, 542; Yale Ksnyak, 565; and Joe "Ace" Antonelli, 610. Shisler bowled 455 for Sinclair.

It looks like Coffey's might be put up to the National League to bowl. R. & H. remained in second place by taking all four games from the Knights of Columbus. Maughan had a high single of 201. Gavegan bowled 473 for the K. of C. Maughan was high for R. & H. with a score of 573.

Dot's Lanchette took all four games from Detweiler's. It looks like Dot's Lanchette are hitting the pins harder and are starting to climb in the Industrial League. Hornby bowled 478 for Dots while Worthington hit the pins for 427 for Detweiler's.

In The Pocket

By

Back again with some more idle chatter about the maple spillers on the local lanes and how the teams stand in the various leagues.

With the first round completed, the following teams are leading the tenpin parade: in the American League, the Rohm & Haas boys hold the top spot; in the National League, Leon Plavin's Auto Boys are in the van; in the Federal League, Madison (Tooti Inc.); and in the Industrial League, Coffey's. Nice going, boys.

Andy Varipappa, stellar bowler, who performed here a couple of years ago, recently rolled his 46th perfect game. He leads the field in this division.

Kentucky may have its feuds but we have one right here in Bristol that tops them all. "Chick" O'Boyle and Al Moffo make the Mountain boys look like sissies. We wonder who will be on the long end when the smoke clears away.

"Water, water everywhere and not a drop to drink." That is the latest howl at the alleys, but don't worry boys, the fountain will soon be in fine working order. We'll forgive Chick for that since he has installed the new ball cleaner.

Your Tattler stopped at the alleys last Tuesday evening and was pleased to see Joe Amisson tumbling the lumber. He's still in fine shape, rolling a dandy 626 total. Wish you luck, Joe.

We got a kick out of Bozarth, of Burlington, showing Felix Tomlinson, of J. A. C., how to make that 6-7 split. And he did it, too.

Well, folks, if you have any little items that we could use in this column, just send them to your Tenpin Tattler, in care of this paper and we will be glad to look them over.

BOB WAGNER TO MEET 'RED' VAGNONE TONIGHT

TRENTON, Nov. 1—An all-star wrestling card is scheduled for tonight at the Trenton Arena with eight of the leading matmen in the game slated to participate in the festivities.

Promoter Johnny Ipp has made a return match between Bob Wagner, vicious Oregon villain, and Gino "Red" Vagnone, classy California Italian. Wagner made his first appearance at the Arena last week, substituting for Joe Cox, who was called home due to the serious illness of his wife. Bob immediately started to tear the place apart and in a few short moments had the Arena agog with excitement. He is one of the meanest maulers ever to appear here and the fans will be with Vagnone to a man in his efforts to stop Wagner.

They fought one of the wildest brawls ever seen at the Arena and this time the encounter will be one-half hour longer than their first bout. They wrestle over the best two fall out of three, 90-minute time limit route.

Abe Yourist, speedy Texas Hebrew, who has not been defeated in five local matches, will face a tartar in Emil Dusek, one of the five rowdy Nebraskans, in the semi-finals.

Gino Garibaldi, great Italian campaigner, will tangle with John Katan, rough and tumble Canuck, and Abe Coleman, sawed-off Hebrew dropkicker, will have a tough assignment against Nanjo Singh, swarthy Hindu and user of the dreaded "cobra-hold". The first bout will start at 8:30 p. m.

BASKETBALL LEAGUE NAMES ITS OFFICERS

At a meeting of the Bristol Basketball League held last night in the St. Ann's Athletic Association club house, the following officers were elected for the ensuing season: President, Thomas Juno; vice-president, James Eagan; secretary and treasurer, Roy Fry. The managers and directors of the loop appointed Junior McElroy, official scorer, and Albert Tentilucci, official timer. The refereeing position was held open until the next meeting. Any one interested in the job of refereeing is requested to get in touch with the secretary of the league before next Monday night.

Fortif fees of the teams must be posted at the next meeting with a temporary schedule will be presented. It was voted to give the Mill Street Boys' Club first preference to any opening in the loop.

Teams and their representatives present were: Grundy's, George Hermann and William Cooper; Falls Township Alumni, George Roberts and Michael DeRisi; Manhattan Soap Company, Charles Dugan and J. Dugan; Celtics, Vito Delia and John Dugan; and Rohm and Haas, James Eagan and Francis Lefferts.

Testify To Damage Done By Flood Waters of River

Mr. Arthur W. Dover, superintendent of Trenton Docks, said he believed that the deeper channel had helped some but that in 1936 Swift & Co. had had merchandise damaged to the extent of $10,000 at the Trenton Marine Terminal and that it was necessary to remove 3,000 tons of fertilizer to prevent it from being damaged.

Harry J. Lee, Jr., engineer-manager of Morrisville, said that the water of the flood in 1936 was lower than in 1903, but that considerable damage had been done. He described on a map the area affected and told of the damage done to a railroad spur.

Louis Focht, chief engineer of the Pennsylvania-New Jersey Joint Bridge Commission, said that water was the highest in the flood of 1903 but the flood of 1936 was a serious one. Ice was within two feet of the top of the piers of the river bridges which at Trenton carry the traffic of the Lincoln Highway, a trunk highway for east and west traffic. "If these bridges should be washed out their replacement would cost from $5,000,000 to $6,000,000. Last year more than 8,000,000 cars passed over the two bridges. The bridges at Yardley, Stockton and Milford had been damaged by floods. Now there is a gauge at each bridge and during times of freshets readings are made every hour.

Irving Warner, vice-president of Warner Co., Penns Manor, said that the flood of March 18, 1936, had washed out the railroad on their property and done other damage estimated at $3,000 to $5,000. The Kings farms had suffered damage estimated at $3,000. "It is the rush of water that we would like to see prevented." On March 18, 1936, Mr. Warner stated there was an ice jam below the Warner property which caused a tremendous back-up of water.

James Starkey, Starkey Produce Company, said that damage had been done to the 1524 acres of farm land which his company owns in the Penns Manor section. "Production has been retarded and soil erosion had done damage estimated at $10,000."

Mr. Starkey said that much of their top soil had been washed away and fields left without any plant food. Employees had to be moved and school buses could not operate over roads in the area. He gave the loss as $30,000 in 1934.

Others to testify included James Colson, Yardley, who said that in 1936 floods had done damage in that borough amounting to $6,000; Harry B. Arnel, Yardley, told the Board that he alone had suffered damage of $3500 to his stock not including damage done to his property in 1936. He asked that a wall be built to keep the river water out of Yardley.

Coast Guard and Sea-Planes Answer Boat's Distress Call

distress messages intercepted by Mackay radio.

The vessel was identified by Mackay radio as the S. S. Coulmore, a 3,670-ton freighter registered from Glasgow. Rushing to her aid were a number of ships in the vicinity.

The first message relayed by Mackay radio read: "Lat. 40.20 N.; Long. 62.31 W.; SS Submarine."

Mackay reported the "SS SS" probably meant a submarine attack.

Canadian coastal stations, Mackay reported, were sending the automatic alarm signals every few minutes and were calling on the Coulmore for signals so they could establish direction findings. But the Coulmore, Mackay reported, did not answer.

The United States Coast Guard Cutter Campbell, about 200 miles away when the first distress signal was received, was speeding to the position at about 8:30 a. m., e. s. l.

Also proceeding to the position were the U. S. S. Bibb and the Standard Oil tanker the Frederic B. Kellogg, the latter expecting to arrive about 6 p. m.

Shortly after the report of the distress of the Coulmore, Mackay radio relayed a report from the Portsmouth station in England reporting a submarine attack about 250 miles southwest of Gibraltar. The ship was not immediately identified.

The first distress message from the ship believed to be the Coulmore was relayed by Mackay at 1:25 a. m. The message was preceded by a QRT signal, requesting all stations to remain silent for the transmission of SOS messages.

The subsequent silence of the distressed ship gave rise to fears that she may have been torpedoed although it was considered possible she still remained afloat in silence enforced by a submarine.

The Campbell was northeast of the distressed vessel when it received the SOS and started immediately to the rescue.

The position reported by the distressed ship was well within the security belt drawn up by the recent inter-American consultation conference in Panama. The Campbell was slightly outside that belt.

The Bibb reported she expected to arrive at the location at about 8:45 this morning. The Bibb mounts two 5-inch and two 3-inch and two 6-pound guns. The Coulmore was built in 1936 and operated by the Dornoch Shipping Co. She is 352 feet long.

The call letters GYXC, used by the ship in distress, are those assigned to the Coulmore, according to the Coast Guard. She was last reported in Baltimore on October 15, the Coast Guard stated.

The Campbell and Bibb also figured in the rescue of the Athenia survivors by the City of Flint, now in German hands. The two Coast Guard boats intercepted the City of Flint about 400 miles from Newfoundland and transferred supplies to it and removed seriously injured passengers.

By International News Service
Finland's delegation to Moscow moved with hesitation towards the Soviet capital today for negotiations that are to be begun for the third time in an atmosphere described in Helsingfors as "most serious" and involving a "major danger."

The perilous situation in the Baltic arose directly from the speech of Premier-Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav M. Molotov before the Supreme Soviet in Moscow yesterday. Europe expected declarations of major importance from the "old Bolshevik" warrior, and was not disappointed.

While Molotov blamed the Western democracies for the war and castigated the United States for allegedly acting in an unneutral fashion, the main danger seen in his address to the all-Soviet parliament was his attitude towards Finland.

Dr. Juho Paasikivi and the remainder of the Finnish delegation left Helsingfors last night for Moscow, but it was only with reluctance that the Finnish Government permitted them to go after hearing the Soviet Premier's speech.

Ready to yield some concessions to the Soviets, so long as Finland's independence and neutrality were not infringed upon, the Finns showed anger and alarm over Molotov's revelation of the terms on which the Soviets were negotiating.

Molotov said, with considerable irritation, that Finland had turned down a mutual assistance pact similar to those signed by Latvia, Estonia and Lithuania, which permitted establishment of Soviet military garrisons and naval bases on the Baltic nations' territory.

Future negotiations, he indicated, must be based on the protection of Leningrad, the sea entrance of which lies through the Gulf of Finland.

Talks, said Molotov, would be resumed on the basis of cession by Finland of a part of the Isthmus of Karelia, lease of an area near the entrance of the Gulf of Finland for a Russian Naval base, and the exchange of some islands in the Gulf.

That a crisis looms was indicated in Helsingfors, where it was stressed that no portion of Finland's "Mannin Line" on the Karelian Isthmus may be yielded.

In Paris and London, in spite of the Russian declaration that the Soviets are drawing closer to Germany and Japan, some relief was felt over the fact that not even a hint was given by Molotov that a military alliance exists between Russia and Germany.

On the other hand, Germany welcomed the Moscow speech because of its warm tone and confirmation that collaboration between Moscow and Berlin continues to be close.

War conditions on the French-German frontier and on the sea were static today, but the feeling persisted in Paris that drying of the terrain along the front might make it possible for the Germans to launch their long-awaited offensive.

Meanwhile the most difficult of the international "problem children" supposedly was moving down the Norwegian coast—the American freighter City of Flint, German war prize.

The only news of the City of Flint since she left Tromsø, Norway, on Monday to try to run the British naval blockade, came in a negative fashion from London today. There rumors were heard that British ships had intercepted the American boat, but the British Admiralty was not able to confirm the reports.

Berlin, Nov. 1—Russian military aid to Germany in the form of submarine and battleplanes was stressed by competent Nazi quarters today, as a possible reprisal against lifting of the American arms embargo, as the German press and officialdom hailed Premier V. M. Molotov's speech before the Supreme Soviet yesterday.

Molotov's address "meant all expectations," an official spokesman declared.

Germany is in full accord with Russia in desiring a termination of the war, it was said, and "is not interested in expanding it unless the western powers insist on building a bridgehead"—meaning active Anglo-French interference in behalf of Turkey.

GIRL FOR FALLONS

Mr. and Mrs. Martin J. Fallon, Jr., 409 Buckley street, are receiving congratulations upon the birth of a daughter, Saturday in Abington Hospital. Mrs. Fallon was formerly Miss Margaret Richardson.

MISS DUGAN ENTERTAINS

Miss Marjorie Dugan, 155 Otter St., entertained friends Friday evening at a Halloween party. Games were the pastime. The dining room was decorated in orange and black. Refreshments were served to: Doris Stone, Mathew Lisegewski, Emily Sak, Lawrence Stewart, Clara Lavenburg, Dorothy Pollard, Loretta Hagnéy, Charles Heath, Fred Stone, William Mellon, Joseph Dugan, Henry Ponzek.

Copenhagen, Nov. 1—Reports in London that the American freighter City of Flint was stopped by British warships off the Lofoten Island of Norway were denied today.

In a telephone conversation, the Intelligence Bureau of the Norwegian government staff said the reports were "entirely off."

Norwegian authorities know one steamer's exact whereabouts, it was said, but will not divulge the information.

Chester, Nov. 1—Prompt action of Second Assistant Fire Chief Elmer Weigand, who turned in a general alarm, was credited today with saving the Chester high school from serious damage by fire.

When Weigand arrived at the blaze, which was started by a short circuit in the machine shop, only one fire company was battling the blaze. Weigand called out all companies in the city, thus preventing the fire from spreading.
